Important Information

1. If the vehicle is unlicensed, a temporary movement permit must be purchased from Driver and Vehicle Services or a regional agent before it can be driven. A temporary movement permit is not required to drive a licensed vehicle with an expired defect notice to the nearest vehicle examination centre or approved inspection station.
2. A fee is payable for the examination of this vehicle.
3. This defect notice will continue to have effect until a vehicle examiner, or authorised police officer, finds that each defect specified in the notice has been rectified, or a vehicle examiner issues a further defect notice.

Warnings

1. Failure to comply with this notice may result in the vehicle licence being cancelled.
2. If the vehicle licence expires, the number plates must be returned to Driver and Vehicle Services or a regional agent within 3 months of the expiry of the licence.
3. A person who damages or destroys this Defect Notice or a copy of it while it is in force commits an offence.

I the undersigned certify that I have caused the vehicle referred to in this notice to be examined and tested in accordance with the written directions given by the Department of Transport WA.
